(U) Diamond Bar – Man Arrested on Charges for Allegedly Disrupting ‘Stop Asian Hate’ Rally

(U) A Southern California man was arrested yesterday and charged for allegedly disrupting a peaceful rally against anti-Asian racism last year, officials said. Steve Lee Dominguez, a 56-year-old resident of Diamond Bar, has been charged with two counts of bias-motivated interference with federal protected activities, prosecutors said. The rally attendees were peacefully and legally crossing an intersection as Dominguez approached in his black Honda sedan. Dominguez started yelling “Go back to China” and obscenities at the rally participants at the intersection, according to the indictment.
